Young Father Is Saved From 45-Foot Well Early Today

FREDERICKSBURG, Va. (UPI) — Rescuers working in 40 degree temperatures at the edge of a Civil War battlefield early today freed a young father of two trapped since Friday afternoon in a 45-foot well.

Ralph Burgess, 19, was finally hauled safely to ground level at 7:15 a. m. (EDT) and gasped "boy," as he saw daylight for the first time since 2:30 p. m. Friday.

The youth was trapped in the well, located on the rural farm of Everett Henderson 10 miles east of this historic community, while cleaning it to earn extra money to support his family.

His 17-year-old wife, Linda, and both his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Burgess, stood huddled in Army blankets as rescue crews worked gingerly in the glare of floodlights to free Burgess.

The father earlier had been told rest at a nearby farmhouse.

but returned to the rural farm in time to see his son rescued. The youth wore a broad grin as he was placed on a stretcher and taken to Mary Washington Hospital in Fredericksburg for observation.

His wife broke through a cord-on of well-wishers and rescuers and shouted: "I hope to God he's all right." The she managed to squeeze into the ambulance which was taking her husband away.

Dr. Lloyd Morris, who had been at the scene since the pre-dawn hours, said Burgess' condition appeared to be good.

The youth was trapped about 20 feet from the surface for a total of 16 hours and 15 minutes. The commercial well - digging firm sunk a parallel well 30 feet deep in the record time of 53 minutes in order to get to him.

His wife later spent about an hour with him in his hospital room. "He told me everything was fine," she said. "The only thing he said he wanted was to take a hot bath."

Although apparently uninjured, he was to remain at the hospital overnight for a thorough checkup.

Burgess had been sent into the well, 45 feet in depth but only 36 inches wide, because his 5'4", 165-pound frame was just small enough to make the job somewhat comfortable.

Henderson said Burgess had been scooping dirt into a large bucket when he suddenly shouted up the shaft that "a piece of pipe fell on me." The well is reinforced with concrete and metal tubing.

The young father, whose son, Ralph Jr., is only four weeks old, tried to pull himself to the top of the shaft with a rope which had been tied to his waist. At this point, the casing gave way and he fell 30 feet from the top of the well.

The sand and gravel, mixed with chunks of concrete, pinned him from his waist down and his right leg became entangled in the bucket. A pocket knife was tossed to him by his father, but efforts to cut himself free from the rope and bucket were unsuccessful.

The Fredericksburg Rescue squad was hastily summoned and arrived at the scene in about 15 minutes. The commercial well-digging firm decided to dig out the parallel tunnel and accomplished the task in 53 minutes.

Texas Picks Man To Replace Johnson

By BRUCE MILLER
United Press International
DALLAS, Tex. (UPI) — Texas went to the polls today to pick a man to replace Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson in the U. S. Senate and for the first time since Reconstruction the Republican party had a fighting chance to win.

It was a race between a multi-millionaire financier and a college professor. Both are conservatives.

The candidates are interim Sen. William A. Cowley Bill Blakely, 62, a Democrat, and Republican John Tower, 35, who resigned as professor of government at Midwestern University, Wichita Falls, to run.

Both candidates closed out their campaigns Friday night with statewide television programs. Both said they were confident of victory.

After their television appearances the candidates went to their homes—Blakely in Dallas and Tower at Wichita Falls — to vote this morning and sweat out election returns.

The election is a runoff of a special election held April 4 to determine who will serve the remaining 5 1/2 years of Johnson's term in the Senate. Polls open at 9 a. m. (EDT) and close at 9 p. m. Voters cast a total of 1,058,000 votes for 71 candidates in the April 4 election, and election officials said it may run around that figure today. Democrats hope so. Both candidates have indicated that a heavy vote will favor Blakely.

Although Republicans had their best chance in history to get their man elected, the odds were still with Blakely, if for no other reason than he is a Democrat. Texas is an overwhelmingly Democratic state and it takes a major issue to make the Democrats bolt their party.

In the first election, Tower led all candidates with 327,308 votes and Blakely was second with 190,518. But all the other candidates with one minor exception were Democrats. And they way politicians look at it, most of the state's Republicans voted for Tower, and Blakely can reasonably be expected to inherit the majority of the votes split among other Democrats.

MISS MARCIA CHUMBLOR
Mountain Laurel Festival Queen

Murray State Girl Reigns Over Festival

PINEVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — A Murray State College coed from Mayfield, Ky., Marcia Gail Chumblor, reigned today over festivities at the annual Kentucky Mountain Laurel Festival.

Miss Chumblor, whose father, William W. Chumblor is principal of Lowes High School in Graves County, was chosen from a field of 19 representatives of Kentucky colleges and universities.

She was crowned and, following tradition, lightly kissed by Gov. Bert T. Combs at the climax of a colorful pageant in the Laurel Cove amphitheater at Pine Mountain State Park Friday afternoon.

Coronation of the 18-year old education sophomore, a brunette, was threatened by cold rain which fell intermittently during the day and forced postponement of the parade in downtown Pineville for three hours. Even then, most of the candidates for queen carried umbrellas as they rode in open convertibles.

The pageant also was held up by the weather, but shortly after Miss Chumblor was crowned, the sun burst out to provide a happy omen for her reign as Laurel Queen.

PERFECT SHOT

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — A mighty U. S. rocket which could lob a package of nuclear destruction nearly halfway around the world flew 5,000 miles with a dummy warhead Friday night in a near-perfect test of its accuracy.

The success indicated the Air Force's advanced model Atlas, this nation's most powerful war rocket, apparently has rid itself of most of the electrical and mechanical "bugs" which plagued its first few tests.

Also on the program will be Sam Barber's "Commando March", six selections from Leonard Bernstein's "West Side Story" and other standard works.

This concert will be the final concert of the regular school year and will start at 4:30 p.m. after the baccalaureate program.

The check had been found by Holland Rose of Benton after he heard the broadcast on his car radio.

Riders Fined, To Remain In Jail

By AL KUETTNER
United Press International
JACKSON, Miss. (UPI) — Twenty-seven convicted "freedom riders" sat in a downtown jail today, refusing to pay fines imposed for breaking Mississippi segregation laws. A new wave of protest rides was expected to sweep the south during the week-end.

The 25 Negroes and two white men Friday were given 60-day suspended jail sentences and fined $200 each by City Judge James L. Spencer on breach of peace charges growing out of their arrest in Wednesday's "freedom rides" into the Mississippi capital.

Negro attorney Jack Young said after the two-hour court session the riders agreed to stay in jail bonds. For each day in jail, $3 is deducted from the $200 fine. The riders thus could remain confined for 67 days. After five days in jail, they could be removed to the Hinds County prison farm for work on a road gang.

Negro leaders in Nashville, Tenn., and Atlanta indicated, meanwhile, that "freedom rides" could be expected during the weekend. At least one was aimed at this city, center of hard-core segregation in Mississippi.

walnut paneled courtroom, which seats only 122 persons. The municipal jurist said in a statement it appeared the 27 riders came here "to take the law into their own hands and to engage in open defiance of the laws of Mississippi."

The defense had asked for a directed verdict of acquittal, saying the arrests were made solely because of racial issue involved. The motion was denied.

Young then contended Mississippi's 1960 statute outlawing breach of the peace in public places was (Continued on Page 2)

Watson To Take Stand In Own Behalf

DETROIT (UPI) — Gordon Watson was scheduled to take the stand in his own defense today as the Lassiter murder trial concludes its sixth week.

Watson is accused of plotting the murder of auto dealer Parvin Bill Lassiter, who was slain in April, 1959. Three Tennessee men pleaded guilty to the actual shooting and are serving life terms for second-degree murder.

The last of the 51 prosecution witnesses was called to the stand Friday, but two will be recalled to the Detroit courtroom Monday for further questioning by Watson's attorney, Albert Sumner.

Watson has pleaded innocent to the charge that he and Mrs. Nelle Lassiter plotted the slaying and hired the three Tennesseans to do the job. The three, Richard Jones, Roy Buck Hicks and Charles Nash, took the Fifth Amendment and refused to testify against Watson.

Mrs. Lassiter is scheduled to be removed from a Detroit hospital to the Ionia State Hospital for the Criminally Insane Monday. She collapsed in mid-trial and was found emotionally unable to assist in her own defense.

Judge Joseph G. Rashid ordered her committed and declared a mistrial in her case. The case of Watson continued.

Slow Motion Count Of Ballots Underway

JACKSON, Ky. (UPI) — The slow-motion count of ballots in the 94th District Democratic senatorial primary resumed today after a cat-and-mouse game between rival political families in Morgan and Breathitt counties.

The contest was between John Raymond Turner, member of Breathitt County family long prominent in politics; and Mrs. Margaret Stacy, wife of West Liberty banker C. K. Stacy and aunt of Secretary of State Henry H. Carter. Two other candidates were not regarded as strong contenders, and were obviously out of the race on the basis of ballots counted so far.

Breathitt County customarily counts no ballots on election night and this time Morgan County followed suit. The Morgan County election board started tabulating, slowly, Wednesday morning but quit when it was learned Breathitt County hadn't begun its count.

Both finally got underway Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. Stacy charged that her precinct workers were "run out" of Breathitt County Tuesday, and sent watchers to observe the count in Breathitt County. Turner sent watchers of his own to observe the Morgan County tabulation. The eventual winner will run in November against Newton Blanton Maggard, who was nominated on the Republican ticket without opposition.

unconstitutional, a violation of the 14th Amendment.

"For all practical purposes these people were under arrest from the time they left Montgomery, Ala., under control of the National Guard," Young said. The riders came here aboard two buses from Montgomery, now under martial law because of last weekend's racial violence touched off by the "freedom riders' arrival in the Alabama capital.

Asst. City Prosecutor Robert Nichols told the court that "everybody knows why these defendants came to this state. They came here to violate the laws." Asserts Passengers' Right
Wiley Blanton, an Arkansas attorney who guided the Negro side of the 1957 Little Rock school desegregation case, said Mississippi was obliged to abide by federal laws giving passengers the right "to travel free of signs of race segregation."

Blanton said the "freedom riders" were arrested because they "dared" to challenge Mississippi customs. The two white men were arrested, Blanton charged, because they "had the simple courage to travel with the Negroes."

A Negro student group in Nashville, headed by Bob Lillard, said a group of "freedom riders" would leave the city today for Birmingham, Ala. The final destination was Jackson, Lillard said.

"We might not get to Jackson," he commented, "but we are going to Birmingham first."

Some Negro colleges in the South closed their doors for the summer Friday and indications were that many students would join in the riders' movement.

Big Upset In View With New Senators Now Crowding Old Transplanted Squad For 5th

By MILTON RICHMAN

Believe it or not, the new Washington Senators are threatening to overtake the old ones in what could turn out to be the biggest upset since the tortoise and the hare.

The old Senators, as everyone knows, are now the Minnesota Twins. Some experts tabbed them for the first division this year and they started out as if they even had designs on first place.

The new Senators, as everyone also knows, are a rather undistinguished collection of cast-offs, hastily put together last November and picked by most everyone to finish either ninth or 10th.

So what happens? The ungainly Senators are now crowding the transplanted Twins for fifth place with only one game separating the two clubs.

The Twins returned to Washington Friday night for the first time since they officially left the city last winter. And what a left-handed welcome they got.

Twins Get Boos

As each Minnesota player's name was announced, the crowd of 14,033 let go with a cold shower of boos. Then when the names of the new Senators were called off, the same crowd cheered them like conquering heroes.

Fittingly perhaps, the Senators came from behind to win the ball game, 4-3, when third baseman Harry Bright singled home two runs off losing pitcher Jim Kaat in the sixth inning.

Just to rub it in, the Senators nominated Joe McClain to do their pitching. The 28-year old rookie was just another super-numerary in the Twins' farm system who never had been given a chance to pitch in the big leagues when the Senators bought him for $25,000 last November.

McClain limited the Twins to seven hits, beating them for the second time this season, as he won his fifth game compared with three losses.

Angels Edge Tigers

The Los Angeles Angels beat

the first-place Detroit Tigers, 5-4, in the only other game played in the American League. Inclement weather forced postponement of the Boston-Baltimore, New York-Chicago and Kansas City-Cleveland games.

In the National League, the pace setting San Francisco Giants defeated the Chicago Cubs, 3-2, in 13 innings; the Milwaukee Braves buried the Los Angeles Dodgers, 10-2, and St. Louis massacred Pittsburgh, 12-2. The Philadelphia-Cincinnati game was postponed because of cold weather.

Reliever Ryne Duren won his first game for the Angels by holding the Tigers hitless over the last 2 1/2 innings. Earl Averill's double off the left field fence in the eighth broke a 4-4 tie and sent Frank Lary down to his second defeat.

Harvey Kuenn broke up a 1-1 tie between the Giants and Cubs when he singled off loser Don Elston in the 13th inning. Kuenn's third hit of the game scored Joe Amalfitano, and Felipe Alou also

Jones Gets Victory

Sam Jones, fourth of five Giant pitchers, was credited with his fourth victory although he, too, was knocked out when the Cubs came back with a run in their half of the 13th.

Southpaw Warren Spahn of the Braves gained the 293rd victory of his career and his fifth of the season with a seven-hitter over the Dodgers. Spahn, for whom the Dodgers always have spelled trouble, beat them for the second time in 23 days. He helped his cause with a two-run double, and homers by Frank Thomas, and Hank Aaron didn't hurt him any, either.

Ken Boyer drove in six runs for the Cardinals with two homers and a single against the Pirates. Southpaw Curt Simmons picked up his second victory although tagged for 10 hits. Pirate starter Bob Friend, rapped for seven runs in the two innings he worked, suffered his fifth loss against the same number of victories.

HEALTH HINTS

By DR. E. H. OAKLEY, D.C.

Dr. Oakley

ARE YOU "ACCIDENT PRONE"? It is well recognized that some people are "accident prone," which means there is some inner compulsion which causes them to have accidents. Now this inner compulsion is something of which they are not aware. Insurance companies have become well aware that persons who encounter several accidents are likely to have many others.

The only steps which can be taken to insure the well-being of accident-prone persons is to guard them against the "short odds" of an accident, and since the great majority of accidents happen in the home, precautions should be taken there. Switching lights on while in the bath-tub, or handling any electrical appliance is dangerous and can easily lead to electrocution. When bathing there should be a ribbed rubber or plastic mat on the bottom of the tub to avoid slipping, and another on the floor.

Stairways should be well lighted and have a guard rail. The edge of each stair should be painted with luminous white paint to make them more visible. To guard youngsters against taking poison, all poisonous compounds should be kept out of their reach.

Small rugs, which are dangerous booby traps on polished floors, should be anchored securely. In the kitchen, a most popular place for many types of accidents, precautions should be taken to see that all sharp knives are not just thrown into a drawer, but into a knife-holder, which renders the edge harmless. The low pilot-light on the stove should be watched to prevent minor explosions which can bring painful burns. Electrics wires anywhere in the home should be checked to see if insulation is frayed.

In spite of all warnings, "accident-prone" folk still are the pit of easily avoidable incidents which many times are disastrous.

RADIOLOGICAL MONITORING is one of the principal courses stressed today by most civil defense organizations as a preparation for saving life from radioactive fallout which could follow a nuclear attack. A corps of citizen specialists is being trained to measure fallout and forewarn the public. New laws allowing the Federal Government to assume half the costs of hiring more state and local civil defense workers are now speeding this and other CD programs. In the top picture, Robert S. Ritz (far right in audience), new Illinois Civil Defense Agency training officer under the shared-cost program, sits in on a monitoring course in Evanston taught by Mrs. Laura Nissen, the city's training, information and radiological defense officer. She also has recently become a paid employee, selected to devote full time to civil defense under the financial aid program. Ritz later worked the material obtained at Evanston into a similar course at the underground Du Page County Civil Defense center near Wheaton, Ill. (bottom). (OCDA photo)

Designed for Fun

By SUSAN BARDEN

CASUAL clothes designed for leisure hours and well-earned vacations are the most exciting part of any summer wardrobe. And that is exactly what these fun outfits are.

Whether you're planning a trip to the seashore, the mountains, long weekends or just relaxing in your own backyard, these styles will be exactly right.

Coordinated Separates

Each of these costumes is a set of separates. However, the milkmaid ensemble of combed cotton gingham was fashioned so it could be used as a basis for a weekend wardrobe.

It comes in a choice of blue, pink or yellow checks and of course each item may be worn with other tops or skirts and shorts for added changes of attire.

Versatile Culottes

Culottes are given star billing because of their great versatility. A culotte and shirt is perfect for both active and spectator sports and the two-piece can go shopping in the village or suburban supermarket with the greatest propriety.

For completely casual wear, the poncho is a new favorite and a bright complement to shorts, t-shirts and fitted pants.

CULOTTES, ALWAYS A favorite, are getting a big play here in America. This outfit is in an exotic print of blue and green. The sleeveless blouse has a chic scoop neck.

THESE CHARMING milkmaid costumes consist of Jamaica shorts, blouse, full, pleated skirt, and a matching bonnet.

A PONCHO TOP IN a gay plaid in about every color in the rainbow is teamed with a pair of solid-colored shorts.

New Record Is In The Making For Memorial Day

The nation's motorists raced towards a new Memorial Day holiday traffic death record today.

The toll for the first 64 hours of the 162-hour holiday weekend neared 300 and was higher than that of any other Memorial Day holiday on record. Traffic accidents were claiming more than four lives every hour.

National Safety Council President Howard Pyle said "unless our motorists show more respect for traffic law and exercise better judgment in every other way, this Memorial Day holiday will become the most tragic we have ever recorded."

A United Press International count at 12:30 p. m. (EDT), more than 65 hours after the holiday's start at 6 p. m. Friday, showed 299 deaths in traffic. There were 108 deaths from other causes for a holiday total of 407.

The breakdown: Traffic: 299; Drownings: 58; Miscellaneous: 50; Total: 407.

California led the traffic death count with 28. There were 23 traffic deaths in Michigan, 19 in both Illinois and New York State, 17 in Texas, 13 in North Carolina, 10 in Kansas, 9 in both Kentucky and Pennsylvania, and 8 each in Minnesota, New Mexico and Tennessee.

Spring weather kept the drowning toll climbing. In the worst single tragedy, three young children drowned in a private dam 21 miles southeast of Watford City, N. D.

Near Ellenville, N. Y., Dan Piper, 17-year-old grandson of the founder of the Piper Aircraft Corp., was killed when his red and white Piper Comanche crashed into a mountain.

The safety experts had hoped the death pace would slow down Monday as many Americans returned to their jobs for one day of work before embarking on the official Memorial Day holiday Tuesday.

"The highways will continue to be a danger zone," Pyle said.

The Major's Power Hitters Swung Away Sunday With A Volley Of Homers That Set New Record

By FRED DOWN

Major league big guns fired a record salvo of home runs Sunday to mark the approach of the pennant races' Memorial Day milestone.

All told, there were 37 homers, surpassing the previous record of 34 for a fact which history says gives them a better — than — even chance to meet in the World Series next October.

And when it was all over the Detroit Tigers and San Francisco Giants were virtually occupying first place on the night of May 30 — a fact which history says gives them a better — than — even chance to meet in the World Series next October.

No less than 26 homers were hit in seven American League games and another 11 were hit in four National League contests as the big men with the long, tapered bats enjoyed a field day. There were 10 homers hit during the Cleveland — Kansas City double-header and another nine belted during the Chicago-New York bargain bill. Yet, with it all, there were a few pitchers who came out relatively unscathed.

Tigers Widen Lead
When the last baseball flew out of sight, here's how the big league picture shaped up:

The Tigers, powered by three homers, walloped the Los Angeles Angels, 9-4, and took a 3½-game lead in the American League. They're assured of leading the league the night of May 30 no matter what happens in the next 48 hours.

The Giants overcame Ernie Banks' grand slam homer to beat the Chicago Cubs, 6-5, and now lead the National League by 2½ games. They'll have at least a share of first place Tuesday night if they don't blow three games in 36 hours to the Cincinnati Reds.

The New York Yankees scored a 5-3 victory after losing, 14-9, to the Chicago White Sox; the Cleveland Indians beat the Kansas City Athletics, 9-1, and then lost, 8-4; the Washington Senators topped the Minnesota Twins, 6-4, and the Boston Red Sox defeated the Baltimore Orioles, 5-0, in other AL games.

In the National League, the Los Angeles Dodgers shaded the Milwaukee Braves, 4-3, the Cincinnati Reds downed the Philadelphia Phillies, 4-2, and the St. Louis Cardinals whipped the world champion Pittsburgh Pirates, 8-4.

Walks Three Straight
Charlie Maxwell, Norm Cash and Dick Brown hit homers to offset round-trippers by Earl Averill and Ken Hunt and enable Detroit's Jim Bunning to win his third game. The Tigers won the game with a four-run eighth-inning rally featured by the homers by Cash and Brown and climaxed when relief pitcher Johnny James of the Angels walked three straight batters to force in a run.

Jose Pagan's ninth-inning single drove in the winning run for the Giants, who handed the Cubs their seventh consecutive defeat. The beneficiary was Stu Miller, who yielded a ninth-inning homer to Ed Bouchee but nevertheless picked up his third win of the season.

Home runs by Al Smith, Wes Covington and Floyd Robinson paced the White Sox to their opening game victory that ended a six-game losing streak but the Yankees split the double-header behind Jim Coates' six innings of shutout relief and a homer by Roger Maris. Covington and pinch-hitter Bob Cerv hit grand slams in the first game and Robinson also drove in four runs. Bill Skowron singled home the decisive run in the nightcap.

Senators Sweep Twins
Homers by Vic Power and John Romano paced the Indians to their first-game victory, behind Gary Bell's six hits, but the Athletics squared matters in the nightcap on the wings of round-trippers by Leo Posada, Dick Howser, Norm Siebern and Joe Pignatano. Norm Bass spun a six-hitter, including homers by Romano, Woodie Held and Jimmy Piersall, to win his third game for Kansas City in the nightcap.

Gene Green's two-run homer helped the Senators complete a three-game sweep of the Twins with Marty Kuliyn a receiving credit for his third straight win. Harmon Killebrew homered for the Twins.

Don Schwall turned in the best pitching effort of the day with a seven-hitter embellished by eight strikeouts for the Red Sox. Frank Malzone's three-run fourth-inning homer was the big blow of the game as "hard luck" Jack Fisher suffered his sixth loss for the Orioles.

Dodgers Beat Burdette
Dick Farrell pitched six innings of shutout relief for the Dodgers, who beat Lew Burdette for the ninth time at Milwaukee since July, 1956. Hank Aaron drove in all the Braves' runs with a homer and a double but the game-winning blow was a fourth-inning single by Maury Wills.

Vada Pinson hit a pair of two-run homers and Bob Purkey pitched an eight-hitter for the Reds, who dealt Frank Sullivan his fifth Tuesday at the Varsity Theatre.

For the second time in his long career Mickey Rooney uses a make-up device as he dons plastic horns for a hilarious portrayal of Satan in "The Private Lives of Adam & Eve," in Spectacular. Mamie Van Doren and Marty Milner are seen in the title roles. It shows today and Tuesday at the Varsity Theatre.

Talent and Heart In Warren's Novel

THE CAVE. BY ROBERT PENN WARREN
Reviewed by Ernest Vaughan

Robert Penn Warren is somewhat of a curiosity in the literary world. He writes books and poems that are acclaimed by critics and avidly read by the general reading public. One of Warren's most popular books was the Pulitzer Prize-winning "All the King's Men" written in 1946.

"The Cave" is Warren's sixth and perhaps his best novel. It opens in the woods near Joistown, Tennessee, where Jasper Harrick has been exploring a cave. He leaves his guitar propped up against his house near the entrance where later it's found by his younger brother, Monty, out walking with his girlfriend, Jo-Ann Digham.

The girl runs for help when she realizes that Jasper would never have left his guitar out in the night air unless he was trapped in the cave.

Jasper and a friend, "Ikey" Sumpter, had been planning to exploit the cave as a tourist attraction and Jasper had gone into the cave to explore its possibilities. Jasper's friend realizes that Jasper is trapped in the cave and rushes back to the cave to find him but doesn't succeed. But he does dream up a scheme to focus nationwide attention on the cave with himself in the spotlight.

The newspaper, radio, and television move in, and you can take the story from there. But Warren tells his story about Jo-Ann's father, who is dying of cancer, Jo-Ann's father, who is cursed by a domineering wife, and "Ikey" Sumpter, who is longing for his college girlfriend. After the announcement of Jasper's death, the novel winds up with each character finding an answer to his problem and some of them acting on it, while others, unfortunately, do not.

Robert Penn Warren has both talent and heart in "The Cave" and his book comes vividly to life.

I want to express my sincere appreciation for the vote of confidence extended to me in last Tuesday's primary. I will continue to do my best for the progress of the city.

CHAPTER 14

LARRY GAINES told me he always wanted to be an actor. Ella Barker said, "I guess he'd make a good one."

Her tone was sardonic. She was finding her armor, hardening her personality against life in jail.

"Why do you say that?"

"Look how he took me in. The great lover. When he gave me that diamond ring, that watch, I thought he'd bought them for me. Honest."

"I believe you."

"Nobody else around here does. Even the other girls think I'm holding out. They keep asking me questions about Larry, like I was really close to him, and knew all about him. I've been asked so many questions, my head spins. I wake up in the middle of the night, and hear voices asking me questions. I'm going to go nuts if I don't get out of here."

"If we can get our hands on Gaines, it's going to help you."

"Where is he?"

"That's the question. It's why I'm bothering you again."

"You're not bothering me. It's nice to see a friendly face, somebody I can talk to. You're nice to me, Mr. Gunnarson. Don't think I don't appreciate it."

She gave me a dim smile, her first.

"You should smile more often. Your smile is your best feature."

It was a broad compliment, but not too broad for the occasion. She really smiled this time, and dropped five years.

"Thank you, sir."

"Getting back to Gaines, if you can bear to—did he talk much about acting?"

"No, just once or twice. He mentioned that he did some acting."

"Where?"

"I think in high school."

"Did he say where he went to high school? Think hard."

Dutifully, she wrinkled up her forehead. "No," she said after a pause, "he never mentioned that. He never told me anything about his past life."

"Did he talk about his friends?"

"Just Broadman. He thought Broadman was a slob."

"Did he ever say anything about actors or actresses?"

"No. He never even took me to the movies." She added bitterly: "I guess he was saving his money for the blonde."

"What blonde do you mean?"

"The one I caught him with, the one I said looked like Holly May. I guess he was going with her all the time."

"All what time?"

"When I thought he was my boy-friend, and maybe we'd get married, and everything. It's really her he was interested in, probably."

"What makes you think so?"

"What she said."

"I didn't know you ever talked to her. How often did you see her?"

"Only the once—the time I told you about. I remember exactly what she said: 'You little tomat—talking to Larry—have you been playing games behind my back?' She said: 'I'm not flattered by your choice of a—choice of a substitute, something like that.'"

A slow blush mounted on Ella's neck to her cheeks. It softened her mouth, and then her eyes. She said in an unsteady voice: "I made a fool of myself with that Gaines, didn't I?"

"Everybody's entitled to one big mistake. You could have come out of it worse."

"Yeah, if he really had married me. I see that now."

"Did he ever give you presents besides the watch and the ring?"

"No. He gave me flowers once. One flower, a gardenia. He said that it would be our flower. That was the night he let me in on the big robbery plan. Thank heavens I didn't go for that, anyway."

"Do you have anything of his? Clothes, for example, that he may have left with you?"

"What do you think I am? He never took off his clothes in my apartment!"

"Sorry, I didn't mean anything wrong, Miss Barker. I thought you might have something personal of his. Some keepsake."

"No, all I had was the ring, and I sold that. I forgot about the watch." She wrinkled up her brow again. "There's something else I forgot. It doesn't have any value, though. It's just an old sharkskin wallet."

"Larry's wallet?"

"Yeah. I noticed one night when I gave him my picture—one of those wallet-sized pictures. I noticed that his wallet was all worn out. So I went downtown next day and bought him a new one, an alligator wallet. It cost twenty dollars, with the tax. I gave it to him next time I saw him. He liked it. He took all his money and stuff out of the old one, and he was going to throw the old one away. I wouldn't let him."

"Did he leave anything in the wallet?"

"I don't think so. But wait a minute. There was a piece of paper in the back compartment—something cut out of a newspaper."

"What newspaper?"

"It didn't say. It was just a piece cut out of the middle of a page."

"What was the piece about?"

"A show, some kind of a show. I think it was a school play."

"Did you ever ask Larry about it?"

"No. He would have thought I was silly, keeping it."

"You kept the clipping?"

"Yeah. I tucked it back inside and kept it. You'd think it was money or something. How silly can a girl get?"

"Do you still have it?"

She nodded. "I forgot to throw it out. It's in my apartment."

"Where in your apartment?"

"In the bureau, the top drawer of the bureau in the bedroom. I have a little redwood chest I call my treasure chest. I put it in there. Mrs. Cline will let you in." She shook her head. "I hate to think what her opinion of me must be."

"I'm sure it hasn't changed."

She raised her head and looked at me levelly with soft, bright eyes.

"No. He would have thought I was silly, keeping it."

"You kept the clipping?"

"Yeah. I tucked it back inside and kept it. You'd think it was money or something. How silly can a girl get?"

"Do you still have it?"

She nodded. "I forgot to throw it out. It's in my apartment."

"Where in your apartment?"

"In the bureau, the top drawer of the bureau in the bedroom. I have a little redwood chest I call my treasure chest. I put it in there. Mrs. Cline will let you in." She shook her head. "I hate to think what her opinion of me must be."

"I'm sure it hasn't changed."

She raised her head and looked at me levelly with soft, bright eyes.

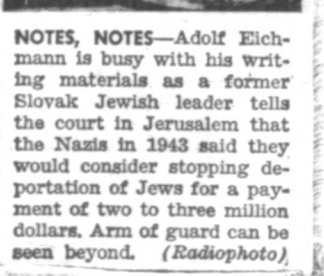

I LOST NO TIME in getting to Ella's apartment, and the landlady let me in. I found the clipping in the wallet, where Ella had said it would be. It was a tired old clipping, beginning to come apart at the folds. As Ella had said, it seemed to be a review of a high-school play. Part of it, including the headline and byline, was missing. The rest of it said:

"Dorothy Drennan was her usual charming self in the role of ingenue, Claire Zanella and Marguerite Wood were charming as the bride-maids, Stephen Roche and Hilda Dotery performed excellently as the comic servant couple and had the large audience of friends and parents in stitches, as did Frank Treco and Walter Van Horn with their usual live-wire antics."

The surprise of the evening was Harry Haines in the demanding role of Jack Treloar. Harry is a newcomer to local high-school theatrics, and impressed us all with his talent. Also to be commended are Sheila Wood and Mesa McNab, who performed well in supporting roles, as did Jimmie Spence. The play itself left something to be desired in the writing department, but our young Thespians made it an enjoyable evening for all concerned."

The sentences about Harry Haines had been underlined in pencil. For a boy of that name, I thought Larry Gaines would be a natural alias. I turned the clipping over. The other side carried a news-service story about Dwight Eisenhower's election to the Presidency, late in the fall of 1952. I folded the clipping carefully, replaced it in the wallet, and dropped the wallet in my jacket pocket.

Gunnarson is going to lose the jump and help on a police lieutenant. The story continues here tomorrow.

NOTES, NOTES—Adolf Eichmann is busy with his writing materials as a former Slovak Jewish leader tells the court in Jerusalem that the Nazis in 1945 said they would consider stopping deportation of Jews for a payment of two to three million dollars. Arm of guard can be seen beyond. (Radiophoto)
